Based largely on the early 21st century Western governments, the UAS is essentially a blend between the USA and the EU, undercut with Chinese and Korean tendencies. After stringent environmental legislation created a vacuum in the Western transportation and energy market, which was quickly filled by the Eastern countries mentioned above who did not adhere to the UN's effectively empty litigation. In 2050, the year in which several Western sustainability promises were due to be fulfilled (and they were), the Industrial & Commercial Bank of China sold short $700,000,000,000 in oil futures that they themselves had filled the market with in the years leading up. A month later, Chinese troops invaded and occupied every landmass east of Cairo and south of Istanbul. There were no reported casualties. Within 6 days the religious strife in the Middle East was resolved, mostly due to the work of Shoichi Tomiyama, a Japanese-born state official and secretary to the Chinese Health Minister.

In a record-setting 46 minute G-10 summit in Amsterdam the week that followed, the International Monetary Fund was dissolved, China and Korea became members of what then became G-12, all western countries adjusted their interest rates to stabilize their currencies against the Yuan and the US capitol, White House, Parliament and all, were moved to Shanghai. The EU was disbanded and each individual country raced to maximize its foreign currency deposit, in Yuan, of course. Portugal tried to resist. In July the country made a heroic attempt to buy up a majority position in almost all luxury commodities. Porsche, Mercedes, GM, BMW, Fiat, and Audi became Portuguese cars. Alibaba moved its headquarters to Lisbon. Portuguese operatives raided diamond stores, bombed grocery outlets, and Portuguese bombers sabotaged crops across the West. At the time no one noticed. Everyone was busy buying godknowswhat with the virtually unlimited amount of money they had loaned from their government at virtually 0% interest, and the Western governments were busy in bed, in a hotel room in Shanghai. The average price of, well, everything you could think of, was doubled and then quintupled in a week as Portugal began closing down factory after factory. 400 cargo ships went missing on Saturday, July 21 2050. The Portuguese money, which, unbeknownst to Portugal, had all been funneled to the French National Bank from each of the companies that Portugal had acquired, was used to lower the interest rate to well below zero in cities on the French-Spanish border. The population of Spain was reduced by a quarter when the first leaves fell that year. These proceedings were publicized rather differently. In most countries the general citizen was not aware that power was shifting to the geographical East. The news was filled with clips of Imams and Rabbi's in sobbing embrace, of monks and mullahs bent over a shared laptop rewriting the Sharia law.. Tomiyama's name was never mentioned, and each citizen was told that his head of state had been the primary orchestrator of the peace. Meanwhile the 4 big Chinese banks quadrupled in size, and after a failed attempt to destroy $3,670,000,000,000 in Chinese paper currency, the country of Portugal fell into a short but deadly civil war that winter, in which its population was further reduced, incidentally by exactly the same amount as the Chinese banks had risen, for the banks found a way to sell the war corpses for about $1,200,000 in Alibaba call-options a piece to a mysterious company based in Tangiers. In all the hullabaloo, the existence of Portugal was forgotten in a decade, and people forgot, or never even heard, that on New Years day 2051 nuclear warheads was detonated 1 mile underground beneath every major Portuguese city. The blast was enough to knock the Earth slightly out of its orbit which would cause seasonal problems in years to come. Again, people in other countries were too busy guzzling caviar to bother asking why all the windows had shattered.
